Welcome Back!

"I haven't been here in a long time," Monica said quietly. "Welcome back!" I responded, "We are so glad you came." This exchange is becoming a common refrain at SnowCap as neighbors who haven't needed help recently visit the pantry.

Monica shared that even though she and her husband are both working full time, rapidly increasing prices for essentials like food, diapers and gasoline have stretched the budget to the breaking point. It warmed my heart to see a smile light up her face as SnowCap volunteers wheeled out a cart loaded with fruits, vegetables, pantry staples, cat food and hygiene supplies.

"Your help is a big deal for my family. Forget extras! We are just trying to keep a roof over our kids' heads and food on the table. Things are hard right now."

I am sure that you or someone you care about can relate to what Monica and so many others are going through. It is simple enough to see the problem: expenses are up and paychecks are not.

Folks know where to go when cupboards are bare and money is tight. This is why SnowCap is here and why we need your help.

Two thousand more people were helped at SnowCap in March 2022 than in March 2021. No one was turned away because people like you gave what they could. AND just like you, SnowCap's expenses to meet the most basic of human needs are increasing.

Today, on behalf of neighbors like Monica, I am asking you to consider making a gift in an amount that fits your budget. Please do not worry that your donation is too small, and if your circumstances allow you to give a bit more than in the past, please do!

Perhaps your family is in need of help right now. SnowCap is here for you too. As we often say, this is a place to get what you need and to give what and when you can. This is what community is all about.

Gratefully,

Kirsten Wageman

50 Years of Service

In October 1970, Charlie Ross was just 33 years old when he and his wife took a cross-country trip from Illinois to Portland, Oregon to pursue an opportunity as the new pastor of Parkrose UCC. After landing the job, Charlie was certain that he wanted to engage with the community beyond the church, and asked around to see if there were any local services helping those in need. Although he can't remember who it was, somebody happened to mention a small, relatively new charity called SnowCap that was providing food to the hungry.

After initially taking a few canned food donations to the fledgling organization, Charlie began volunteering for SnowCap in 1972, ultimately deciding that was exactly where he was meant to be.

"Human connection is so important" said Charlie, "and SnowCap has always done such a good job making sure people have enough to eat, as well as making them feel welcomed and cared for. I just love that they help people who need help."

Throughout his many years at SnowCap, Charlie has just about done it all. From working in the pantry, to helping on the board and volunteering at special events, Charlie has an extra special place in his heart for SnowCap's auction.

After 50 years, Charlie is now SnowCap's longest continually serving volunteer. And while he's satisfied with the work he's done, the one thing that makes Charlie truly beam with pride, is passing down his legacy of serving the community, to his own family.

"I'm so happy that both my kids and now my grandkids have all volunteered with SnowCap. They've helped fill food boxes, and helped with the auction, and now they volunteer with me, to make sure I get a ride over here every week, so I can keep volunteering."

While he might not be able to do every volunteer job he used to do, at 85 years old, Charlie still carries that same passion for helping others, that drew him to SnowCap in the first place.

"SnowCap was built to last" said Charlie, "I'm excited about what we've done, and I'm excited to see where it goes from here."

We are too, Charlie. And we can't thank you enough for 50 wonderful years of helping SnowCap, help others.
